Dirty needles cleanup coming

But public health study favours status quo over new 'one-for-one' exchange

By TIM WIECLAWSKI
Metro Ottawa

Ottawa should continue to freely dispense syringes to addicts, but with more resources directed toward collecting dirty, discarded ones.

A report by interim medical officer of health Isra Levy yesterday claimed that Ottawa could expect a 33 per cent increase in infections if it converted its needle exchange program to a "one-for-one" system. But the report also demands better needle collection efforts to protect the community.

"We've heard loudly and clearly ... that there is concern about finding discarded needles," Levy said. "After an extensive review ... we've concluded that the non-restrictive approach is in fact the best approach."

« This is the safest route ... particularly for our first responders who have to deal with people who may or may not have a pocket full of needles. »
Mayor Larry O'Brien

A group of councillors requested the review of the needle exchange in April, in response to residents' complaints that drug users were discarding dirty, city-issued needles where they could harm other people.

But Levy said the current system is the best practice because HIV and hepatitis infections would rise if addicts were required to turn in a needle to get one. Also, police and paramedics would face increased risk of harm as drug users began to carry more needles.

Mayor Larry O'Brien said he's been convinced that the open distribution program is safer for residents than a one-for-one exchange.

"This is a safer route ... particularly for our first responders who have to deal with people who may or may not have a pocket full of needles," he said.

Levy acknowledged that needle clean-up efforts are inadequate and recommended $100,000 worth of enhancements to the collection program. Those include hiring staff to respond to reports made through a newly created hotline, extending the hours and routes of the needle hunter program, and installing more drop boxes.

Coun. Eli El-Chantiry — one of the councillors to request the review — said he was not 100 per cent satisfied with the report's findings, but said he'd wait and see how collection efforts progress.

"If we see a decline in the number then obviously we're going in the right direction, but I'm not going to wait a year and a half to find out this is not working."

Safer Ottawa co-founder Chris Grinham, who has voluntarily removed thousands of dirty needles and crack pipes from city streets, said he's willing to "stay open to the possibilities and see where this goes.

"But with the understanding that public health will remain as open-minded as us," he added.

Fest fling in full swing

Five events going on this weekend, more to come

By TRACEY TONG
Metro Ottawa

With five big events on this weekend, Ottawa's summer festival season is in full swing.

With the Franco-Ontarien Festival, Westfest, Italian Week's Ferrari Festival, the Carnival of Culture and the Dance Festival all happening this weekend, it's easy to see why Ottawa is increasingly becoming known as a city of festivals.

"We have 44 festivals, special events and fairs within our group members and everything from music, art, culture, dance and film to sports and all aspects of entertainment," said Ottawa Festivals executive director Barbara Stacey.

June, July and August are the most active months for festivals. "Some of them are community based and give a more local focus, but some really draw from the tourism side," Stacey said.

"It adds to the richness … and quality of life in Ottawa. There's more to do than you ever imagined."

Festivals also employ residents, provide volunteer and community involvement opportunities and bring tourism dollars into the city.

In 2007, Ottawa's 7.8 million visitors had an economic impact of $2.2 billion, said Misty Wade Hovey, communications co-ordinator for Ottawa Tourism.

According to the group's most recent festival study, about 1.5 million people attended 21 festivals in 2003, Hovey said.

Of those people, one million were local residents, 120,000 people were from just outside the city and 345,000 people were from more than 80 kilometres away.

Because visitors who come here for festivals tend to stay overnight, it has a ripple effect, Hovey said. "The industry truly does benefit."

Advocates hope to speed up cycling plan

By TRACEY TONG
Metro Ottawa

A cycling advocacy group here supports the proposed Ottawa Cycling Plan, except it wants to see it implemented more quickly.

After five years of studies, a final draft of the Ottawa Cycling Plan that contains four recommendations to improve and encourage cycling in Ottawa will be presented to the Transportation Committee for approval on Wednesday.

The 20-year plan is designed to triple bicycle use by making riding safer, easier and more convenient — largely through a cycling network that connects communities, said Wilf Koppert, program manager of the Cycling and Pedestrian Facilities Unit.

"That's the heart of the plan."

"We like the network plan," said Citizens for Safe Cycling president Charles Akben-Marchand. "It's important to have a network of routes across the city, and we believe education and promotion is a very important aspect."

> « It's important to have a network of routes across the city, and we believe education and promotion is a very important aspect. »
> Charles Akben-Marchand, Citizens for Safe Cycling president

But the 10-year timeline for the first phase needs help, he said. "They should be meeting the goal sooner."

More financial investment is also needed, said Akben-Marchand, who notes the budget for the first phase is $26 million, which averages out to $3.10 per resident per year.

"It will be crucial for councillors to ensure future city budgets back this plan up," he said.

Group member Zlatko Krstulich, who has been cycling in the city for 25 years, said he wants to see the plans approved and accelerated, but otherwise likes what the proposal offers.

"The plan does provide for some east-west connectivity in the city, and has a lot of details about proper design of transport infrastructure to accommodate cyclists, how to plan intersections of roads and also plans for bicycle parking," Krstulich said.

"Cycling is very important in Ottawa already and if we can increase cycling, then we can decrease the amount of cars on the road and we'll have better air quality and a healthier population," said Koppert.

Signs of pot at fire site

Firefighters find alleged grow-op while battling blaze

By TRACEY TONG
Metro Ottawa

Ottawa firefighters discovered a suspected marijuana grow operation while fighting a blaze in the city's west end yesterday morning.

At 6:17 a.m., a firefighter on his way to work happened upon the fire when he spotted smoke several streets southwest of Merivale Road and Meadowlands Avenue, said District Fire Chief Lyle Fraser.

Police and fire arrived at the scene at 52 Sullivan Avenue minutes later. "They saw a lot of smoke, but not a lot of fire," said Fraser.

Approximately 25 firefighters and six trucks arrived to locate the fire in the basement of the bungalow. There, they found signs of "suspicious activity" in the basement believed to be part of a grow operation. There were several pieces of electronic equipment in the basement.

"We sent a crew into the first floor and cut a hole and used a cellar nozzle to spray the fire down," he said.

The fire was under control by 7 a.m.

No one was home at the time of the fire and there were no injuries.

» Damage is estimated at $75,000 to the house and $10,000 to the contents, which were minimal, Fraser said. The fire is under investigation by the fire department and Ottawa police.

Councillor dumps on garbage bins

New receptacles – sans ads that pay for them – needed

By TIM WIECLAWSKI
Metro Ottawa

An Ottawa councillor wants to add some flash to where Ottawans dump their trash.

Saying Ottawa needs to pay more attention to the appearance of city streets, Capital ward Coun. Clive Doucet said people should start by demanding smaller, more attractive trash and recycling bins.

> « I think when we got them (trash bins) we were looking for the cheapest and they reflect that. »
> Coun. Clive Doucet

The current ones are too unwieldy and they overwhelm the sidewalks, said Doucet.

"I think when we got them we were looking for the cheapest and they reflect that," he said of the 300-plus steel bins located across the city.

He said the current bins are so ugly that business and residents don't want them in their neighbourhood. Robert Nadeau, with the newly formed Glebe BIA, agreed, calling the current bins functional, but an eyesore.

"It's ugly. It's absolutely ugly," Nadeau said. "Whenever I see them on the street, I can't help thinking, 'we have got to do better than this.'"

The cost of maintaining and procuring the current bins is recovered through advertising. But Doucet said the small entry holes and the large advertisements on the bins are a deterrent to using them.

New and improved bins, like three that have been placed around city hall, could cost around $2 million to purchase and maintain, but Doucet called that amount trivial relative to the overall city budget.

The contract on the current bins expires in 2010, but Doucet said people must start demanding better bins now before new contract negotiations begin.

"If the people of Ottawa don't insist on attractive streets and street furniture, we won't get them," he said.

Download crackdown

New bill seeks to go after big fish, not individuals

commercial gain

» Piracy for commercial gain will face stiffer penalties. The bill allows for a maximum of five years in prison for anyone copying, uploading or sharing movies and music for profit.

Canadians will be allowed to copy legally acquired music to their iPods and computers but would be banned from getting around any digital locks that companies might apply, under new legislation introduced in Parliament yesterday.

The bill, introduced by Industry Minister Jim Prentice, would also reduce the penalties that companies could seek for most private infringements of copyrights to a maximum total of $500 from a previous $20,000 per infringement.

Currently, for example, someone downloading five movies without authorization for private use could be sued for $100,000, whereas now the maximum would be $500 — a level that would make firms unlikely to pursue such individuals.

"It's not a fine. It's actually a form of damages. In other words, it's the rights holders that have to pursue. It's not the state — it's not criminal," a government official, who asked not to be identified, told reporters in a briefing.

Heavy, commercial levels of piracy, however, could face far more severe liabilities in corporate lawsuits and would also continue to be subject to government prosecution. REUTERS

Alberta funds vaccine

Alberta has decided to fund a controversial vaccine to prevent cervical cancer, the last province to do so in Canada despite continued opposition.

Beginning in September, girls entering Grade 5 will be eligible for the HPV (human papillomavirus) vaccine. Ninth-graders will be eligible in September 2009.

"This voluntary immunization program is really about taking preventive action to keep our female students healthy," said Education Minister Dave Hancock in a release.

Some Christian groups say the shot encourages teenage girls to have sex.

Dr. Simon Dobson, of Canada's Vaccine Evaluation Centre, has told Metro that the vaccine has received unfair media attention.

"According to a national study, it shows a parent's religious belief is not an issue when it comes to immunize their girls," said Dobson.

About 180 Alberta women are diagnosed with cervical cancer each year and 40 will die from the disease. METRO EDMONTON

Senior envoys from Canadian consulates in New York, San Francisco, Detroit, Miami, Denver, Seattle and seven other U.S. cities fanned out across Capitol Hill on Wednesday to argue the agreement has benefited Canada, Mexico and the United States far more than it has hurt them.

Democratic presidential candidate Barack Obama promised to renegotiate NAFTA to include stronger protections for workers and the environment during their democratic primaries. REUTERS

Quotas taking effect

South Asians to be hit hard by new targets

immigration minister

» Immigration Minister Diane Finley championed changes to the immigration act as a way to deal with the backlog, which she says is 693,816 in the economic class alone.

South Asians are disproportionately hard hit by visa quotas and huge backlogs for immigrants, government numbers obtained through a Freedom of Information request show.

The quota, or target as Ottawa calls it, for the New Delhi office is 9,245 visas a year. The backlog as of April 10, 2008, was 145,556. With no new applications, it would take a little under 16 years to clear that. Those numbers are for economic migrants who want permanent resident visas, not family reunification or refugee visas.

"Someone doesn't want to tell people from India that they are getting hit and hit hard," said Vancouver lawyer Richard Kurland, who got the numbers from Citizenship and Immigration Canada through a Freedom of Information request.

The finding comes as the Tories passed a new bill this week giving more power to the immigration minister.

Security for migrants urged

The organization that oversees immigration consultants is toothless and should be dismantled, replaced by a statutory body empowered to go after unscrupulous advisers who prey on vulnerable migrants, urges a report tabled in the House of Commons yesterday.

The report by the standing committee on citizenship and immigration, following three months of cross-country consultation hearings examining issues facing Canada's immigration system, found the current regulatory model is full of glaring loopholes that allows anyone to call themselves an immigration consultant and to operate with little or no scrutiny.

It proposes a new regulatory body be set up to run like a provincial law society.

China fears attack

Domestic terror biggest Olympic concern: Interpol

China is more concerned about domestic than international terrorism and is pouring unprecedented resources into ensuring the security of the Beijing Olympics, the head of Interpol said yesterday.

Ronald Noble said foreign militants would find it very difficult to operate in China, but this did not necessarily mean the risk of a terrorist attack was lower than at the two previous Summer Games, in Sydney and Athens.

botched rescue

» Security has been an ever-present worry at Olympic Games since 11 Israelis died in Munich in 1972 after Palestinian gunmen took them hostage and German authorities botched a rescue attempt.

"No, I can say that the Chinese authorities have said they are more worried about a terrorist threat coming from inside than from outside, or inspired by inside-related activities than outside-related activities," he told Reuters.

Noble said pro-Tibet protests that disrupted the international Olympic torch relay this year had increased concern that "people might want to use the Olympics in order to make a statement against China."

"But the Chinese authorities have devoted more resources to making sure these are safe Olympics than any other country has ever before, and China is a very, very difficult country for a foreigner to operate in without him, or her, or that group being detected," Noble said. REUTERS

Stem cell scams

Experts warn about untested therapies available online

Some unethical websites and clinics are offering "snake oil" treatments that claim to provide cures using stem cells, but are at best raising false hopes, stem cell experts said yesterday.

The International Society for Stem Cell Research said it wants to counter these misleading claims with a set of guidelines for researchers and the public alike, in part to preserve the field's reputation.

"These guidelines are critically important to the future success of the field," said Dr. George Daley, president of the group and a stem cell researcher at Children's Hospital and Harvard Medical School in Boston.

master cells

» Stem cells are the body's master cells and they come in a wide range of forms

"Not only does the use of untested therapies put patients at risk, it jeopardizes the legitimate practice of all translational stem cell research."

The group declined to name any Web site or clinic, but said they are widely advertised.

The websites say they "can cure any disease you can find in a pathology textbook," said Dr. Giulio Cossu, a stem cell expert at the San Raffaele institute in Milan, Italy.

Guilty plea in organ theft case

A New Jersey dentist behind a scheme to steal body parts from corpses faced relatives of the dead in court yesterday and apologized for the anguish he caused.

Michael Mastromarino, 44, in March admitted to leading a $4.6-million operation that stole body parts from funeral homes in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

The ring dismembered more than 1,000 cadavers in unsanitary conditions, and sold parts to doctors who transplanted them into patients.

Mastromarino faces 18 to 54 years in prison and is due to be sentenced on June 22.

Astronomers glimpse dying star

Scientists have for the first time witnessed the flash of light produced inside a dying star just before it explodes, according to a study yesterday that provides a unique glimpse into how a supernova forms.

The red supergiant, more than 500 times more massive than the Earth's own sun, was destroyed after its core collapsed and a deadly shock wave of energy completely blew it up, the astronomers said.

Until now, scientists have only been able to observe the afterglow of such bursts that light up galaxies without knowing which star actually exploded, the researchers reported in the journal Science.

Court holds off on GM's injunction

An Ontario court reserved a decision yesterday on whether to grant an injunction sought by General Motors of Canada to end a nine-day blockade of its Oshawa, Ont., headquarters by the Canadian Auto Workers union, the automaker said.

GM is arguing for an injunction to end the union's action and for $1.5 million in compensation from the Oshawa local of the CAW and five of its members.

Shortly after the case began in a Whitby, Ont., court, several hundred CAW members and their supporters kicked off a "solidarity" rally near the Oshawa truck plant. REUTERS

Why food prices still low in Canada

REPORT Only two per cent of the price of cereal represents the cost of the grain. Price fixing probed

Criminal charges laid over alleged gas collusion

The federal Competition Bureau says it is investigating gas price fixing in other provinces in the wake of criminal charges and convictions in Quebec.

The bureau announced at a news conference in Montreal that criminal charges have been laid against 13 people and 11 companies for allegedly fixing gasoline prices in four Quebec markets. This is the first time since 1955 that a gas price fixing prosecution has resulted in convictions, said competition bureau commissioner Sheridan Scott.

record high

» Gas prices have reached $1.51 per litre at some Quebec pumps in recent days.

Three companies and one individual pleaded guilty to the charges yesterday. The companies, which include Ultramar Ltd., were fined a total of $2 million.

Scott said gas retailers in Thetford Mines, Victoriaville, Magog and Sherbrooke allegedly phoned each other to agree on gasoline prices.

Ultramar was fined $1.85 million. An Ultramar employee was fined $50,000.

Ovechkin sweeps awards

Capitals superstar adds Hart, Pearson to trophy shelf

Washington Capitals winger Alexander Ovechkin capped a dazzling season by winning the Hart Trophy as the NHL's most valuable player last night to complete an unprecedented sweep of awards.

Having already claimed the Art Ross trophy as the NHL's leading points scorer (112) and the Maurice "Rocket" Richard trophy for leading the league in goals (65), the 22-year-old Russian also picked up the Lester B. Pearson Award as the NHL's outstanding player as chosen by his peers.

It marks the first time a player has won the Hart, Pearson, Richard and Ross trophies in the same year.

Ovechkin also won a world championship gold medal after Russia ended a 15-year title drought beating Canada in the championship game in Quebec City last month.

The Capitals sniper easily out-pointed Pittsburgh's Evgeni Malkin and Calgary's Jarome Iginla in Hart balloting.

"Next year is a big year for me and for Capitals," Ovechkin told reporters.

"I want to win everything so maybe next year the Stanley Cup."

Other awards handed out at the NHL's gala evening included a sixth Norris Trophy as the league's top defenseman for Nicklas Lidstrom, the captain of the Stanley Cup champion Detroit Red Wings.

Teammate Pavel Datsyuk picked up two trophies — the Frank Selke (top defensive forward) and Lady Byng (most gentlemanly player).

New Jersey's Martin Brodeur won his fourth Vezina Trophy in the past five seasons as the NHL's top netminder while Chicago's Patrick Kane won the Calder Trophy as the top rookie. REUTERS

Croatia underlined their growing reputation as Euro 2008's most dangerous dark horses by stunning tournament favourites Germany 2-1 and earning a quarter-final berth in a day of enthralling Group B action yesterday.

Icon en garde for Canada

YORK REPORT
MARTY YORK
marty.york@metronews.ca

At about 10:30 a.m. yesterday, Jujie Luan received a clean bill of health from her doctor in Edmonton.

What does this have to do with the price of tea in China?

Well, nothing, but it certainly will increase the price of Olympic tickets in China.

Luan, see, is a Chinese legend. She won a gold medal for China in fencing in 1984. She is officially listed as one of China's top 50 sports stars. Her image has adorned Chinese postage stamps. A movie chronicled her life. There were several Chinese best-selling books on her. Chinese youngsters still study her feats in textbooks. She is as recognizable in China as, say, Wayne Gretzky in Canada.

Now, Luan is hoping to become a two-country legend. At the ripe young age of 50, and after retirement stints of 12 and eight years, Luan qualified recently to represent Canada at this summer's Olympics in China, although she wasn't certain she'd be able to compete until her doctor's appointment yesterday.

"I've been very tired lately," she told me via cell as she left the doctor's office. "I needed blood tests. It's my thyroid, but it's OK and I'm going to Beijing."

She'll be a scalper's delight there. She'll draw capacity crowds. She may be the most compelling story at the Games.

Her return is "already all over the Chinese newspapers," said Luan's husband, Dajin Gu. "I don't think it's common knowledge in Canada but it's major, major news there."

Jujie insisted she isn't nervous. "I'm fine mentally," she said. "I've been through a lot."

True. She joined China's national fencing team at 16 and became the world's best despite a serious kidney ailment. In 1983, she grew fond of Edmonton while at the World University Games and moved to the city six years later to study English at the University of Alberta. She became a Canadian citizen and was inducted into Edmonton's Hall of Fame this week.

"We would have returned to China but our oldest child was born here with Down syndrome and we knew we couldn't get affordable health care there," Gu explained, "so we stayed.

"Canada's great. I do nothing. Jujie teaches and coaches. Our children are happy."

They'd be happier, of course, if mom wins another medal, but Gu has cautioned them.

"She has no chance," he said. "Fencing is a young people's sport."

Evil Urges unleashed

My Morning Jacket takes new disc in different direction

By BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI
for Metro Ottawa

Profile WHEN SONGS from Louisville, Ky., jam rockers My Morning Jacket started leaking, the collective response to the record was shock. The reaction was mainly sparked by the track, Highly Suspicious, which features singer Jim James putting on an unusual falsetto with the rest of the band chanting the song's title in the background. It's a far cry from the group's usual melodic pop affairs, something drummer Patrick Hallahan is well aware of.

"I heard this particular song and I was like, 'What the hell is this?'" he says, recalling the moment when James played the band the tune for the first time. "Jim is one of my best friends and you think you know the guy and you get this and I'm like, 'Maybe I don't talk to you enough.'"

It wasn't long before the five-piece warmed up to the surprisingly catchy tune. Hallahan explains that the track was simply mean to be a fun listen, but there's more going on here than just a band wanting to have a good time. Evil Urges is easily one of My Morning Jacket's more eclectic offerings, with quirky tracks, straight-up Southern tunes, and infectious rock 'n' roll littering the disc. While it's as interesting as their other records, My Morning Jacket has definitely gone in a different direction.

"We wanted to challenge ourselves, says Hallahan. "We tried to get out of our normal comfort zone of seclusion and unlimited time."

To do that the group recorded in New York City — it's the first time they've ventured outside Louisville to make a record. "We were working in a studio where we could only go for 12 hours at a time," he reveals. "We've never been faced with limitations like that before. It yielded a different outcome because we had to focus more."

There's a chance some fans might be turned off by tracks like Highly Suspicious, though so far the tune has garnered much more praise than scorn. While the band knows some fans might be alienated by the new tunes, Hallahan says growing as a group trumps popular opinion. "We had to take these steps for our mental stability," he explains. "We have to grow, change and create. In order to do that we have to try new things and push ourselves. We just ask that people stick with us."

MAPLEMUSIC PHOTO

Evil Urges, the new album from My Morning Jacket, is an eclectic mix of quirky tracks and infectious Southern rock.

But pushing themselves wasn't easy. Hallahan even spent a few days wondering if recording in New York was the right decision. "It was stressful at times. It was a lot of work and really changed the way we recorded. But," he adds, "it was a lot of fun too."

In the end My Morning Jacket achieved their goal for Evil Urges – it's focused, diverse and, for better or for worse, it shows that a 10-year-old band can still evolve. "It will piss some people off and make others very happy," says Hallahan. "We're still catching flack for not making another At Dawn."

Top rock acts prepare to drop new albums

A quick glance at the release schedule for the rest of 2008 points to a shift in the music cycle — more rock and less pop.

» Coldplay (Tuesday): Although it's not out yet, their Viva la Vida album is already on torrent sites. Producer Brian Eno did for Coldplay's fourth album what he did for U2 when they needed to make the transition from the sound of War to The Unforgettable Fire.

» Beck (July): On Modern Guilt, he's gone all psych-y with producer Danger Mouse. Chemtrails, the Syd Barrett-like song that's already out, is not the official single. My pick would be a track called Orphans.

» Green Day (Fall): They have to follow up American Idiot. Talk about a tough act to follow. Ignore the Foxboro Hot Tubs project from earlier this year. A mere distraction.

» Killers (Fall): One of the hardest-working bands in the world today. We might hear a single as early as August with an album to follow in early October.

» AC/DC (Fall): Word is that they'll follow the Eagles by offering this disc exclusively at Wal-Mart.

» U2 (Fall): If past history is anything to go on, we'll get the first single sometime in early September and the album in November. And don't expect a Radiohead-like giveaway.

The Charlatans

Album: You Cross My Path
Label: Cooking Vinyl/Koch
Release Date: June 10

THIS IS EVERYTHING a modern rock album should be — nostalgic, but cutting edge; disturbing but celebratory; danceable but contemplative. Over the years, this Manchester band has learned to draw inspiration from the best of the '60s, '70s and '80s. They have a straight-to-the-point sound with just enough psychedelia to keep things interesting. Don't wait for Coldplay, buy The Charlatans. You Cross My Path maybe the band's best yet. Four stars out of five.

GRAHAM ROCKINGHAM

Sloan

Album: Parallel Play
Label: Murderecords/Sony BMG
Release Date: June 10

ALTHOUGH SLOAN has released records since 1999's Between the Bridges, it really feels like they've taken a long hiatus. After three lackluster albums this decade, it's safe to say the band have returned to form. Parallel Play should have been released after BTB — it's full of familiar riff rockers (but good ones), Jay Ferguson's brilliant soft rock songwriting, rich harmonies and, most importantly, infectious pop hooks. Other than the obnoxious Emergency 911, Sloan's ninth disc is finally a release worth getting excited about.

N*E*R*D

Album: Seeing Sounds
Label: Interscope/Universal
Release Date: June 10

THANK GOD PHARRELL Williams and Chad Hugo, a.k.a. production wizards The Neptunes, have a successful day job. If they didn't there would be no way their hip-hop/rock side project would be as entertaining as it is. N*E*R*D's third effort doesn't follow any particular format — there's rock, rap, jazz, adult contemporary —and some of the lyrics are laugh out loud funny. If you can take this for what it is — a fun hobby for Williams and Hugo — then you'll love this disc.

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI

My Morning Jacket

Album: Evil Urges
Label: ATO/MapleMusic
Release Date: June 10

BALLSY ATTEMPT TO shed this Kentucky outfit's neo-Southern Rock tag or an excuse for Jim James and pals to test one's patience with extremely diverse tastes? Just when you fall for some consistency in I'm Amazed, Librarian and the rocking Remnants, James funks up his Prince-like falsettos (the title cut, Highly Suspicious), taps into his inner Radiohead (Touch Me I'm Going To Scream Pt. 1 and Pt. 2) and unleashes a homage to '70s soft-rockers America (Thank You Too!, Sec Walkin). Not quite MMJ's White Album, but it proves MMJ is begging for artistic acceptance beyond jam-band horizons. IAN NATHANSON

Ivana Santilli

Album: TO.NY
Label: Do Right!/Outside
Release Date: June 10

DON'T EVER LET über-producer Timbaland near, let alone scoop up, this former Bass Is Base vocalist/songstress. The last thing the world needs is a deprivation of Santilli's steady doses of easy-on-the-ears retro-boogie. Santilli is certainly confident and content as soulful vocal deliverer. Still, for all the charms of the upbeat Hollywood (Nothing Over U) and Been Thru This, along with the lushly arranged Leave It Alone and All Afternoon, missing is some lyrical depth into her travels and travails of life living abroad and coming home. The T-dot and New York do have some urban edginess, don't they? IAN NATHANSON

Alanis Morissette

Album: Flavors of Entanglement
Label: Maverick/Warner
Release Date: June 10

NO ONE DOES jilted lover better than Alanis Morissette. She made millions with the gritty revenge tune You Oughta Know and her latest is about her failed relationship with Ryan Reynolds.

Needless to say, Flavors of Entanglement is biting and depressing, as she muses on what when wrong, while calling a "time out from all things commitment." Musically, the disc is an odd mix of hard rock, soft piano, electronica and Eastern sounds. It's no Jagged Little Pill, but rather a curious and occasionally entertaining listen.

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI

Jakob Dylan

Album: Seeing Things
Label: Columbia/Sony/BMG
Release Date: June 10

SO ON HIS first solo album, you'd think the "Son Of Bob" would sound a lot like the old man. But, no, he sounds more like an old Bruce Cockburn record. Which is not a bad thing to sound like at all. Stripped down to the bare essentials by producer Rick Rubin, Seeing Things has a campfire sound to it. All that brooding gets a little boring after awhile, though.

The Incredible Hulk, take two

The Incredible Hulk
Stars Edward Norton, Liv Tyler
Director Louis Leterrier
PG

By RICK MCGINNIS
for Metro Ottawa

Edward Norton stars in the title role in this incarnation of The Incredible Hulk, opening this weekend.

REVIEW THE FIRST and best sign that director Louis Leterrier understands the job in front of him in the second movie take on Marvel Comic's Hulk is the winking cameo he gives Lou Ferrigno — the big green monster in the '70s TV series — and the late Bill Bixby, glimpsed in a rerun of The Courtship Of Eddie's Father.

For the audience buying tickets for the film this weekend, Ed Norton will be playing Bruce Banner, the character made famous for them by Bixby back in the '70s, and not by poor Eric Bana in the ill-starred Ang Lee film of 2003 to which this is, ostensibly, a sequel.

Like an embarrassing relative or your high school haircut, Lee's film is something no one wants to discuss, but its shadow hangs over Leterrier's film.

Leterrier has no interest in departing from the comic book film form, to his credit; the film sets up the scenario quickly — Banner in exile in a favela in Brazil, searching for a cure for his "condition" — and rewards us with a big action set piece and the first appearance of Banner's hulking alter ego within the first half hour.

We get the love interest (Liv Tyler), the bad guys (William Hurt and Tim Roth) and the stock conspiracy theory plot mechanism with a secret military program; everything in its place and a place for everything.

What Ang Lee overlooked — or ignored — was that the comic book film is rarely interested in innovation, and especially innovation that deprives it of its brute thrills in favour of a more nuanced exploration of character.

Like it or not, the successful comic franchise film craves the familiar — how else do you explain the roar that issued from the preview audience during the film's coda, which featured a cameo by Robert Downey Jr. as Tony Stark — aka Iron Man — which borrowed the good karma of summer 2008's much more successful big screen comic franchise to give its audience the "happy ending" they craved?

Early revelations in Happening

The Happening

Stars Mark Wahlberg, Zooey Deschanel, John Leguizamo
Director M. Night Shyamalan

14A

By RICK McGINNIS
for Metro Ottawa

Zooey Deschanel and Mark Wahlberg star in The Happening, now in theatres.

REVIEW THERE WAS once a punk rock novelty song recorded by a fellow named John Otway with the unlikely title Beware Of The Flowers 'Cause I'm Sure They're Gonna Get You Yeah.

It was a daft rave-up that still managed to keep your head bobbing even after the humour of the chorus had worn off, but no one ever imagined that someone would make a whole movie based on its premise. This little gag — a very little one, I'll shamefully admit — was the only thing that kept me smiling once the pivotal premise of The Happening revealed itself.

The very great problem with M. Night Shyamalan's films is that once he departs from the nameless dread so painstakingly created in their setup, they've lost most of their reason to exist. He's a horror director uninterested in shocking you silly, and a maker of thrillers with one big plot point on which everything pivots, instead of a few dozen smaller ones meant to keep you intrigued. And once you've passed over the fulcrum of that pivot his films often disintegrate into unintentional humour.

The Happening begins with a high school science teacher (Mark Wahlberg) quizzing his students about some inexplicable and ominous disturbances in nature's balance, just as several cities in the U.S. northeast are being hit with what looks like a chemical attack. Things get serious fast, and he flees the city with his wife (Zooey Deschanel) and best friend (John Leguizamo), and they quickly find themselves stranded in the country as the suicide-inducing contagion closes in on them.

The film is a bit of a departure for the director, since he reveals the big premise early on, and not near the end, sparing the audience the eye-rolling revelations that made Signs and The Village so retroactively disappointing. Unfortunately, that means you can start rolling your eyes and giggling earlier, with the first film that makes itself the punch line to global warming's joke.

Flimsy narrative is set in beauty

My Blueberry Nights

Stars Jude Law, Norah Jones
Director Kar Wai Wong

PG

By ADAM NAYMAN
for Metro Ottawa

REVIEW MY BLUEBERRY NIGHTS is the first film that Kar Wai Wong has made in English and, based on the disappointed responses of most critics, it figures to be his last.

Make no mistake, only a supremely gifted filmmaker (working in collaboration with a marvellous cinematographer, Darius Kohndji) could conjure a film so beautiful. It's not just the people and places in My Blueberry Nights are pretty (although Norah Jones, Jude Law, Natalie Portman and Rachel Weisz surely constitute a traffic-stopping assemblage): Wong's typically impressionistic compositions — blurred still lifes and restless neon flashes — have their own star presence.

What people have taken issue with is what's happening inside the frames, and it's true that the narrative — a cross-country odyssey framed by vignettes in New York City — is on the flimsy side and the dialogue is no less florid than it is in Wong's Chinese language. But even if this is the case, My Blueberry Nights isn't really anything to apologize for — all missteps should be this graceful.

Tiger has no bite

The Tiger's Tail
Stars Brendan Gleeson, Kim Cattrall
Director John Boorman
STC

By JASON ANDERSON
for Metro Ottawa

REVIEW A WEALTHY Dublin real estate developer is none too pleased to see a familiar face through his car's windshield: his own. Though set in contemporary Ireland (hence the film's name, a play on the expression Celtic Tiger), The Tiger's Tail fits into a long lineage of eerie tales of doppelgangers and sinister twins — Poe, Dumas, Twain and Dostoyevsky all wrote stories about the usually dire consequences of encountering your double. Alas, this latest variation on the theme is not the most memorable — The Tiger's Tail's iffy plot twists, inconsistent performances and confusing tone will strain the credulity of any viewer.

What makes The Tiger's Tail particularly disappointing is it reunites Brendan Gleeson and John Boorman, the actor and director who made the terrific true-crime drama The General in 1998. Here, Gleeson plays Liam O'Leary, an ambitious developer who has profited from Ireland's economic boom. Though a confident, blustery fellow, he's nonetheless disturbed when he starts to see someone who looks exactly like him across crowded rooms. Driven by his obsession, he discovers a family secret may explain who this man is. A confrontation between the look-alikes leads to a Prince and the Pauper-style reversal of fortune for Liam.

Sex And The City's Kim Cattrall also stars as Liam's wife Jane, deploying a dubious Irish accent. Jane and the impostor have a charge lacking in the rest of the film. It's rarely clear whether Boorman intends Liam's story to seem comic or tragic. Less ambiguous is the director's take on modern Ireland, which he presents as a heartless society where capitalism has run amok.

Roth revels as villain

Perfect foil for star of The Incredible Hulk

By STEVE GOW
for Metro Ottawa

GETTY IMAGES
Tim Roth

FEATURE EVERY GREAT superhero deserves a great villain and even the monstrous behemoth that is the Hulk is no different. Lucky for the producers behind The Incredible Hulk, Hollywood's Go-To Guy for playing the perfect bad dude was available when they called. Enter Tim Roth.

Having played everything from an evil monkey in Planet of the Apes to a love struck robber in Pulp Fiction and even earning a coveted Academy Award nomination as the scheming villain in 1995's Rob Roy, Roth has earned a well-deserved reputation as the ideal rapscallion. "I don't mind (playing villains) if they're kind of juicy," Roth recently told me while promoting the Incredible Hulk.

"If I'm having a good time with it, the audience tends to see that." With the Incredible Hulk, Roth returns to form playing Emil Blonsky, an over-the-hill soldier who craves the thrill of power. When he purposely gets a greater dose of the same gamma radiation that turned rival Bruce Banner into The Hulk, he quickly takes advantage of his new beastly power — one that only the green-skinned superhero can match.

"It was a seriously large amount of fun we had making it." says Roth.

But the shoes of his character (The Abomination) are not easy to fill. The history of The Hulk goes back to 1962 when he debuted in comic-book form.

Five years later, The Abomination made its first appearance and has since become one of The Hulk's most revered foes.

"I was wary of (the fans) because they're tough," says Roth. "But they've actually gone through the roof. They love it!" And hardcore fans aren't the only ones appreciating Roth's villainous portrayal. Critics have also been kind to the latest Hulk blockbuster. It might not even be a shock to Roth if he found out the role returned him to, dare I say it, awards territory.

"(The Abomination) kind of reminds me of the Rob Roy guy in a way." admits Roth. "As clumsily as I play it, it's still quite carefully written so it's sort of a bad guy experience that the audience can enjoy."

The Incredible Hulk opens today.

Young People an adventure

Young People F---ING
Stars Aaron Abrams, Carly Pope
Director Martin Gero
18A

Young People F---ing is now in theatres.

REVIEW THE FIRST kiss in Young People F---ing, the sex comedy that dares not speak its full name, is tentative and almost chaste.

The smooch is accompanied by mutual insults: "You're an idiot!" "No, you're an idiot!"

Not exactly the nation-shaking boot-knocking you were expecting? You could be forgiven for thinking YPF would literally sizzle out of the projector, given all the heat its title has provoked from clueless politicians and self-righteous moralists. In truth, Canadian filmmaker Martin Gero's very funny and insightful feature debut is far less shocking that its detractors — most of whom haven't even seen it — would have you believe.

Older canoodlers, those of us pointedly excluded by the title (but let's forgive that, shall we?), will recognize YPF as a slightly raunchier version of Love, American Style, a TV series popular in the early 1970s.

It shares the same sketch format of 20-something and 30-something couples working out various love dilemmas.

The only difference here is that one of the couples is a threesome.

The actors are the finest troupe of fresh Canuck faces to appear on film in many a moon, and they're all totally game.

All of them progress through a six-part sensual adventure, marked by chapters: Prelude, Foreplay, Sex, Interlude, Orgasm, and Afterglow.

Despite the formula format, there are a few surprises to be had, along with a practical demonstration of the best kind of music for f--ing.

If you're looking for porn, you've come to the wrong place.

There are a few bare breasts, a couple bare asses, one naughty strap-on and that's about it.

The nation's moral fibre remains intact.If you're looking for a good time and a little wisdom, then come right in.

Young People having sex

Time to get over controversial title, film's stars say

By CHRIS ATCHISON
for Metro Ottawa

FEATURE ACTORS Ennis Esmer and Natalie Lisinska aren't quite sure what all the fuss is about. Their new film has raised the ire of politicians and some in the movie-going public, few of whom have actually seen the picture.

It should be noted that it contains no violence, bare breasts and a couple of bottoms are the only nudity on display, and with the exception of some explicit language, the sexual content is far from gratuitous.

Maybe it's the title, Young People F—king, that's raised more than a few eyebrows across this great land. "People assume things out of nowhere," Esmer says. "They hear the title, think of something else and think that's what the movie is about."

"I think the universal reaction to it from people who have seen it is, 'oh, it's really sweet, isn't it?'" Lisinska adds. Controversial monikers aside, the comedy has drawn most of its attention from critics who lauded the comedy's sharp, edgy writing and witty dialogue when it premiered at the Toronto International Film Festival last year.

Directed by Canadian Martin Gero, and co-written by Gero and Canadian actor Aaron Abrams, the film is an exploration of the complexities of relationships, rather than the gratuitous romp its title suggests.

Lisinka and Esmer

Still, the rest of the press Young People F—king has received has largely been tied to the ramifications of Bill C-10, which would give the federal Heritage Department the power to deny funding for TV programs and films deemed offensive or inappropriate, or retroactively revoke tax credits for productions considered offensive.

"That's what's so ridiculous about the controversy with the government because sex is such a universal thing that everyone experiences and everyone does," Lisinska says.

Esmer opines: "If the ladies at my stepmother's Shabbat dinner are OK with the content of the movie, then the Conservatives should just tone it down."

As far as that provocative title is concerned, Esmer adds that it's just time to get over it.

"When you put the title out there it became the responsibility of the press or the people who run the movie theatres.

"They can call the movie whatever they want."

The film opens in theatres today.

DON'T MESS WITH THE ZOHAN

★★★½ (out of 5)

Adam Sandler plays the title role in the film, a sort of Israeli James Bond with a secret dream of styling hair in New York City, who fakes his death and goes off to live his blow-dried, '80s-inspired dream. Sandler plays Zohan with an Israeli accent so painstakingly bad that it becomes its own joke, as does the film's barrage of Hebrew and Arab slang, most of it invented.

RICK MCGINNIS/FOR METRO OTTAWA

KUNG FU PANDA

Kung Fu Panda introduces us to Po (Jack Black), a lazy panda who dreams of one day becoming a martial arts master, but is simply too fat and lazy to make it happen. That is until he is crowned the next "chosen one" destined to hold the title of master, only to find himself tagged with the honour, much to the chagrin of the crusty guru Shifu (Stranger Than Fiction's Dustin Hoffman). Kids will love watching a dumb panda fumbling around as he tries to save his village from destruction of a sinister snow leopard.

Film fans young and old will be hard-pressed to miss the smile creeping across their face when they hear John Williams' famed score and see that trademark fedora make its first big-screen appearance in 19 years, in a much-anticipated re-introduction to the greatest adventure character of all time. The Kingdom Of The Crystal Skull is pure summertime blockbuster joy.

Beating the boys at their own game

Hathaway more than holds her own with comic actors

By GLEN MILLER
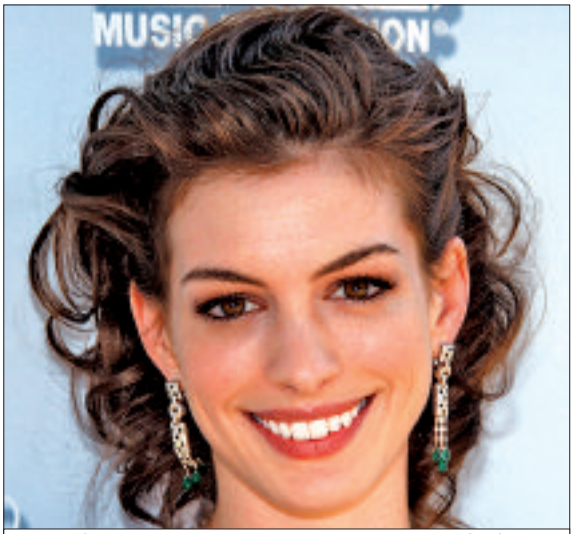
for Metro Ottawa



Anne Hathaway stars as Agent 99 in Get Smart, opening next weekend.

FEATURE ONE, TWO, THREE, four male actors . . . and keep counting the male universe on the set of Get Smart.

Enter the lone major female star — Anne Hathaway. As Agent 99, the 25-year-old had a ball playing with the boys during the four-month shoot. Most notably acting with the lead boy — Steve Carell, Agent 86, in the good vs. evil movie that opens in theatres next Friday. As it turns out, Hathaway isn't only a good actress on-screen, but admits deft subliminal acting by hiding her nerves from her co-stars. After all, such major players as Carell, Alan Arkin (chief) and Terence Stamp (Ziegfried) have an array of film credits. "It always is (nerve-wracking), but I'm really good at hiding it," Hathaway told Metro. "I didn't want to make everyone else around me uncomfortable by talking about how obsessed I am — with them ... I very easily could have geeked out everyday, but I don't think we would have got a lot of work done. "I was very intimidated by everything that was going on, but I chose to try and appear that I was cool and knew what I was doing." Get Smart, the big-screen version, weighs in with an abundance of action and comedy mix, just like the legendary Emmy Award winning TV series (1965-70) that has gained more fans over the years through syndication.

But according to Carell, it was Hathaway who was turning heads with her ... speed. "There were several scenes in the movie where we are running toward Disney Hall (downtown L.A.) at full tilt," said Carell. "I was running as fast as I possibly could run. Anne Hathaway was wearing 4-5-6-inch heels and she was kicking my ass. And I have no idea how that is physically possible." And then there's those occasions on set when real life takes over and you just have to wing it. For Hathaway, that would be having a health issue during the time she had to kiss Carell during a romantic scene. Due to a mix of using a contact solution that was pulled off the shelves last year, and a simultaneous sinus infection, Hathaway got pink eye."And my tears kind of got in my mouth, (before kissing him)," Hathaway said, laughing. "It was very glamorous."

Carell escaped infection. But as Michael Scott in The Office, he probably wouldn't have.

THE CRITIC

- Anne Hathaway on analyzing her acting:

"I hate everything the first time I see it. Everything. Every last performance I've ever seen for the first time . . . the best I've ever given myself was, well, it didn't suck and that was for Brokeback (Mountain). I'm really critical."

Heigl takes a pass on Emmy

Grey's Anatomy star declined to be nominated

ACTRESS KATHERINE HEIGL, a surprise Emmy winner last year for her role on the hit TV drama Grey's Anatomy, has bowed out of this year's race in an apparent swipe at producers for diminishing her presence on the series.

Heigl, 29, quietly chose not to submit her name for consideration as an Emmy contender this year but explained her rather conspicuous absence from the ballot when asked by Tom O'Neil, columnist for the Los Angeles Times' showbiz awards website TheEnvelope.com.

"I did not feel that I was given the material this season to warrant an Emmy nomination, and in an effort to maintain the integrity of the academy organization, I withdrew my name from contention," she said in a statement posted by O'Neil.

"In addition, I did not want to potentially take away an opportunity from an actress who was given such materials."

The lengthy list of performers vying for Emmy recognition from fellow members of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences was posted in recent days. Nominations will be announced on July 17.

Heigl was the upset winner of last year's primetime Emmy as best supporting actress in a drama for her role as Dr. Izzie Stevens on the ABC hospital series, beating out two other co-stars for the award — Sandra Oh and Chandra Wilson.

It was the show's biggest Emmy triumph since the 2005 inception of the series, which helped lead the way in ABC's ratings rebound three years ago and ranks as one of the most watched dramas on U.S. television.

But while Heigl has since emerged as Hollywood's latest "it" girl following the success of her breakout film comedy Knocked Up, her profile on Grey's Anatomy this past season has been noticeably reduced.

As noted by O'Neil, one of her more meaty story lines on the show this year involved her character saving a deer that had caused a string of automobile accidents.

"What she deserved after winning the Emmy was a heightened profile on the show, not a reduced one," he said, adding that she appeared to be "logging an internal protest" with the show's producers.

While not uncommon for Emmy veterans to withdraw from contention in later years — as Candice Bergen and Bill Cosby have in the past — they typically have done so after repeated wins to give others a shot.

A spokeswoman for ABC, a unit of the Walt Disney Co. , said the network has no comment on Heigl's move.

Heigl's last big-screen role was in the romantic comedy 27 Dresses, which released in January.

Daily Variety reported this week that she has just clinched a deal to star in and produce a film adaptation of Escape, the best-selling memoir of Carolyn Jessop, whose testimony helped convict polygamist sect leader Warren Jeffs.

Kreesha Turner bounces into pop land with a sassy R&B sound.

By Noreen Flanagan
Executive Editor

Kreesha Turner may be the only artist to credit our national anthem with helping her discover her voice. As a child, the Edmonton-born singer tap danced to Oscar Peterson tunes, but it wasn't until she auditioned for a church choir at 15 that she knew she could sing. "My mother wanted me to spend a year in Jamaica so I'd understand my cultural background," she explains. "My friends were in the youth choir there, so they wanted me to try out. I didn't know what to sing, so the conductor suggested my national anthem." Turner made the cut and went on to "fall in love with music." After she graduated from high school, she told her parents that she'd spend five years pursuing a singing career; if she failed, she'd hit the books. This June, her 23rd birthday, marks that deadline. With a co-deal with EMI Canada and Virgin USA and the launch of her debut album, Passion, this August, Turner won't be resorting to Plan B. Her song Bounce With Me, an infectious R&B pop tune, has been featured on Desperate Housewives, Gossip Girl and The Hills. "I was at home in Edmonton watching Gossip Girl and my song came on," says Turner. "It was so exciting!"

Experts weigh in on finding right bronzer

By SANDY CAETANO
for Metro Ottawa

Counter clockwise from above: Clinique True Bronze Pressed Powder Bronzer, $23.50; Sephora Luminous Trio in Bronze (part of four-piece Sephora Bronzing Kit, $30): Marcelle I-Bronze Self-Tanning Cloths, $16.95 (for pack of 15); Clinique True Bronze Bronzing Gel for Face, $25.

WITH TODAY'S heightened awareness of skin damage caused by ultraviolet rays, the amount of tanning products available for "faking it" are endless.

So achieving that sought-after, sexy bronze glow is really just about doing some research and finding the tools that work best for you.

"You can find bronzers in a variety of formulations, such as gel, powder, and liquid," explains Kelly Amsterdam, director of Clinique Global Communications, Canada. "Aside from bronzers, you can also achieve a sun kissed glow with products like tinted moisturizers, blush and loose powders. The key is starting with a healthy-looking complexion, and finding the right, custom-fit bronzing product for your skin type."

Sephora Pro Beauty team expert Adi Lando says women can achieve that perfect summer glow easily with multi-use products like the Sephora Bronzing Kit.

"Complete with a tri-coloured bronzer for that perfect sun-kissed glow, which doubles as an eye shadow, bronzing brush and lip gloss," he says.

When going the bronzing powder route, the right brush will also help by blending the makeup to give you a flawless finish.

"Think about where the sun would hit you naturally, and try making the number three down your face (forehead, cheek bones and jaw line, and finish down the nose)," he says. "These are the proper areas of application so the bronzed look is natural and not over-done."

When choosing a bronzer it is important to keep in mind your skin type. For example, if you have oily skin you may want to try powders that are matte, with little to no shimmer.

"Before even applying a bronzing product, regardless of formulation, women should make sure their skin is in the best possible condition," advises Amsterdam. "Any summer glow will only look as good as the appearance of the skin underneath – oilier skin types, for example, will definitely want to ensure any bronzer they use is oil-free, and will probably prefer a gel or powder formulation over a more emollient cream."

If you're not sure what bronzer is best for you, stop by a cosmetic counter and seek expert advice. It's a great opportunity to have a look at your best bronzing options, and get free one-on-one application tips and tricks.

Denyse Beaulieu, creative manager at Groupe Marcelle, says another thing to keep in mind is that less really is more. So don't start by caking on too much powder or liquid foundation on your face.

"Start with a little; it's always easier to build than to remove regardless of the formula, whether it be powder, liquid or self-tanner," say Beaulieu.

Fifth year of Westfest biggest yet

'There's no excuse' not to come, Ethics singer says

By KIM MANNIX VERMETTE
for Metro Ottawa

Profile THERE IS detectable pride and excitement in Elaina Martin's voice when she talks about the fifth anniversary of Westfest — the annual, free arts and music festival in Westboro Village.

"This is definitely our biggest year, and it's always a celebration," says Martin, festival founder and producer.

"In year one Westfest was a one-day, $30,000 event, and now, in year five, we're a five-day, $350,000 event. And we're still keeping it fun and free."

Westfest, which runs along Richmond Road, has been praised by many as one of the city's most accessible and diverse festivals, bringing together national and local talent in music, dance, literature and theatre.

"This exists because of Westboro business owners who appreciate and believe in collaborating with the arts," explains Martin.

This year's musical headliners include Grand Analog and Joel Plaskett Emergency tonight, as well as the event Martin says she is most excited about — a Saturday celebration of Canadian Aboriginal women in music, including Kinnie Starr, Holly McNarland and Buffy Sainte-Marie.

As in past years Sunday's line-up is devoted to local acts, and will end with a performance by two of Ottawa's most revered ladies — Sue Foley and Lynn Miles.

"I'm always thrilled to find ways to celebrate the contribution of our own artists. As long as the festival continues we will dedicate a day to local musicians," says Martin.

The Ethics will be one of many bands taking the main stage on Sunday, and singer Kevin Hersak says he and his bandmates are thrilled to be participating in such a "friendly, neighbourhood festival."

"I think it will be a wonderful display of Ottawa music. Too often people think you have to go to Montreal or Toronto to find a great music scene, and there's no reason for that because the talent here is amazing," says Hersak.

He says his band is looking forward to using the party vibe to showcase their rockier side, and also pleased that their afternoon timeslot will give them a chance to play for a different audience than the usual late-night bar crowd.

"Moms and dads, people who don't like the late shows, even some of my coworkers, find it hard to come out at midnight to catch local bands, but this time there's no excuse," jokes Hersak.

Martin says she's always aimed to keep the festival family friendly, which is why there is ample children's entertainment, and dance, theatre and music all throughout the day.

"The main stage isn't just for adults, or just about drinking and watching rock 'n' roll. This festival is about everybody experiencing all different kinds of arts, and having a wonderful time."

Artist incubation leads to folk, reggae, rock fusion

GET OUT THERE
KIM MANNIX VERMETTE
kim.mannixvermette@metronews.ca

On the cover of his new CD, In Between, musician Ashley Newall stands, casually dressed in jeans and a plaid shirt, with heavenly skies above him, and flames lapping at his bare feet.

It's a striking design, both playful and ethereal in nature. And in that it's a lot like Newall himself.

The singer, songwriter and multi-instrumentalist has a good sense of humour about life as an indie musician, and also a true appreciation for his artistic gifts.

"If I were ever to release a book and invent my own religion that album cover would be the cover of my cult book," Newall says with a laugh.

But when it comes to explaining how he came up with the quirky yet melodic fusion of folk/reggae/rock tunes on the disc, Newall is a little more serious.

"I don't really feel like I write songs — I channel them. All creative ideas come from somewhere and I think all artists, and everybody really, taps into that in their own way."

Newall says he wasn't always as philosophical about being an artist as he is now. After a rough "starving artist" period several years back, where he felt he was pouring too much of himself into the quest to be a successful musician, Newall took a hiatus from performing and writing. But that time was also his chance to "incubate as a songwriter."

"Songs can be germinating in your heart and soul and mind even if you aren't getting them down," he says.

The first song he wrote after that period was called I'll Do Ya, a sensual, catchy tune that is also the second track — and his favourite — on the CD.

Post incubation, Newall also reconnected with his band — Brendan Allistone on lead guitar, Adam Fogo on bass, and drummer Jack McGregor. He says even after two years of not playing together, they instantly meshed and knew it was time to record some songs.

They are already busy working on the next full-length CD, which Newall says may be a bit less "perfectionist" and might contain more live off the floor tracks than he's previously recorded.

And Newall is also balancing the re-invention of his own band with the frequent supporting roles he plays in the bands of local singers Shannon Rose and Lisa Poushinsky.

He says he loves both roles — being the front man or rocking more quietly on the side. But at centre stage he can really be himself.

"I do find it quite hard to contain myself sometimes, so with my band I just let go and have a lot of fun."

Oprah's got the power

Talk-show host Oprah Winfrey is still the world's most powerful celebrity, BBC News Online reports Forbes magazine as saying.

The 54-year-old came top of its annual countdown for the second year running, and the fifth time overall.

Golfer Tiger Woods came second, just ahead of actress Angelina Jolie, former Destiny's Child singer Beyoncé Knowles and soccer star David Beckham.

Forbes' list is based on celebrities' earnings, Internet presence and press, television and radio coverage.

Other stars in the Top 10 include reformed pop band The Police, in joint seventh place with rapper Jay-Z.

Harry Potter author J.K. Rowling is ranked at nine, having come in 48th in last year's rundown.

Her earnings over the past 12 months – estimated to be $300 million US – make her the wealthiest celebrity on the list.

Actor Brad Pitt is ranked in 10th place, making him and Jolie one of two "power couples" to make the Top 10.

Jay-Z and Knowles are the other, having secretly married earlier this year.

Pop star Madonna, rock band The Rolling Stones and singer Elton John have all fallen out of the Top 10, as has actor Tom Cruise.

Chris talks about girl struggles

Coldplay front man Chris Martin admits he was a late bloomer, usmagazine.com reports.

"I had a tricky time with girls until I was, like, 21. I got trapped in the friendship tip many, many times," he tells Rolling Stone. "It was like, 'I need to be a rock star because this is no good: Being the kind of guy that everybody likes but no one wants to have sex with.' "

Still, Martin admits he hasn't had a lot of hot-and-heavy romances in his life. He says his wife Gwyneth Paltrow is his only "serious relationship."

He adds he enjoys the challenge of being married to the Oscar-winning actress.

"I always felt it would be great to be with a very powerful woman because it would keep you in your place," he says. "Being married to someone very successful and very powerful basically keeps you hungry to improve."

Shayne, Bachelor Matt may be over

The romance between The Bachelor: London Calling's Matt Grant and his final rose recipient, Shayne Lamas, is over, intouchweekly.com reports

"She asked him to leave her apartment in Studio City, (Calif.)," says the insider. "They're just pretending to still be together to save face for the show."

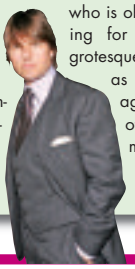
However, Grant insists the couple is still engaged and together – although he admits he did move into his own bachelor pad.

"I was at her place for a few weeks, but it was a small apartment," Grant says. "It's obviously a testing time for us as a couple, so it just seemed that it'd be great for us to have our own little space. We didn't want to be on top of each other early on."

Grant also says that Lamas didn't kick him out of her apartment.

"It wasn't like she said, 'You've got to get out!' ... It was just an agreement," says Grant. Metro News Services

Tom snaps back



Tom Cruise's lawyer has hit back at a TV doctor who questioned the star's mental heath, calling Celebrity Rehab's Dr. Drew Pinsky "unprofessional" and "unqualified," imdb.com reports.

Pinsky has written an article for Playboy suggesting Cruise might be mentally ill for getting involved with the Church of Scientology. The medical expert also claims the actor may have suffered some kind of childhood trauma.

But Cruise's attorney, Bert Fields, has slammed the article. "This unqualified television performer who is obviously just looking for notoriety is so grotesquely unprofessional as to pretend to diagnose Tom and others without ever meeting them."

HOROSCOPE

ARIES | March 21-April 20

TAURUS | April 21-May 21
A young man will cause problems. Everything will return to normal soon. A coward will shock everyone by taking action.

GEMINI | May 22-June 21
Be ready for some frustrating conversations. You'll have to use your ability to understand motives. You'll decide to test an absurd notion.

CANCER | June 22-July 22
You'll be forced to set boundaries. Nobody will be very happy about a big mistake. Make plans to reach out to a friend.

LEO | July 23-Aug. 23

Love will bloom for an older female. Tone down your approach to a joker. Someone will back you up in a fresh scheme.

LIBRA | Sep. 23-Oct. 23
Someone precious asks you for a favour. Making a graceful exit will be the best choice. Depression comes from having extra work.

SCORPIO | Oct. 24- Nov. 22
A new schedule will make people uncomfortable. Ask a bureaucrat some serious questions. Avoid having too many drastic ideas.

SAGITTARIUS | Nov. 23- Dec. 21
Don't push anyone around in order to get ahead. Seek a miracle by taking responsibility. A woman will heed your call.

CAPRICORN | Dec. 22-Jan. 20
A pleasant meeting will cheer you. You'll have to work with a team to get a job done. Rules will inhibit the resolution of your desires.

AQUARIUS | Jan. 21-Feb. 18
A suspicious man will give you the benefit of a doubt. Get ready to shake things up. You can implement your secret plan.

PISCES | Feb. 19-Mar. 20

instructions »

The digits 1 through 9 will appear exactly once in each row, each column, and each zone. (A zone is an outlined 3x3 grid within the larger puzzle grid. There are nine of these zones in the puzzle.) Do not enter a digit into a box if it already appears elsewhere in the same 3x3 zone, or in the same row across the puzzle, or column down the puzzle.
